

Noted Engineers To Report On Metropolitan Aqueduct

THADDEUS MERRIMAN

RICHARD R. LYMAN

A. J. WILEY

CHIEF ENGINEER FRANK E. WEYMOUTH METROPOLITAN WATER DISTRICT

Colorado River Aqueduct Board of Review including Thaddeus Merriman, A. J. Wiley and Richard R. Lyman now engaged in conducting review of the exhaustive aqueduct route report prepared by Chief Engineer Frank E. Weymouth of Metropolitan Water District.

Headed by Thaddeus Merriman, chief engineer of the New York City water system and author of famous Cattkill aqueduct, largest water supply system in America, the special board of review retained by the Metropolitan Water District is scheduled on December 20 to bring in its recommendations on the best and most economical route for an aqueduct from the Colorado river. Other members of the board are A. J. Wiley of Boise, Idaho, and Richard R. Lyman of Salt Lake City, both internationally known consulting engineers.

queduct route problem filed recently with the district board of directors by Chief Engineer Frank E. Weymouth is being thoroughly studied by the Merriman group. More than six years of constant study and engineering survey work formed the basis of the Weymouth report and findings. During the course of these years of investigation, Weymouth pointed out more than 60 different possible routes for an aqueduct which were tested and studied by district engineers and consulting geologists.

Col. Bower of Keystone Has Two Old Time Country Weeklies of 1901 for Our Texts Today

(Editor's Note: Have you a copy of an old newspaper? If you have, The Herald would like to see it and pass on its interesting features to our readers. All old papers will be returned to the owners intact within a week after they are received.)

We are indebted to Col. Bower of Figueroa street, Keystone, for our subjects today. Col. Bower has let us look over two old-time country weekly newspapers—the Daily Sentinel, published at Grand Junction, Colo., October 22, 1901; and the Pallade Courier, of Pallade, Mesa County, Colo., October 26, 1901.

Of the two the Daily Sentinel is perhaps the most interesting for this series of "Yesteryears' Newspapers" for one thing, it contains this priceless bit of press agency—"E. J. Carpenter's grand scenic production of 'Quo Vadis', than which no greater success has ever been accorded a dramatic presentation, will be the attraction at the Park opera house, Oct. 24. The stage will be cleared of all scenery belonging to the house, to make room for special sets, draperies, perfect copies of furniture, etc., in use at that period of the Roman empire. The costumes are historically correct, and the company is a large and well balanced one."

How often we've seen those one-night standers—with their portly leading men and ageing "juveniles"—and "Quo Vadis"—remember the chariot race!

We detect a "dig" at a merchant in Grand Junction whose advertisement is missing in our Sentinel as the editor has featured a story headed "A Female Walk Out" on his front page that could have done the merchant no good.

It appears, after reading the long article through, that the "cause of the rumpus" came about all over a picture which the young ladies of the store (the girls behind the counters) had had taken, in a pure spirit of fun with a number of other girls and several of their young gentlemen friends.

There was nothing wrong with the picture, as the Sentinel tells us "It was a group and was taken by a well-known married lady, who is a warm friend of several of the young ladies." But the merchant "seemed to see something in it which he did not think was complimentary to the character of his store and he proceeded to remonstrate with one of the young ladies—who promptly told her fellow clerks and they "told him in no uncertain terms what they thought of him" and walked out.

The paper says that they "refuse to be placated." We wonder if they are still out or if the merchant has seen the result of his folly and is now in the young ladies' good graces?

That was a nice story the local weather man got on his return from a convention where he "stood only a few feet away from the Secretary of Agriculture to have his picture taken."

Picking up the Pallade Courier, we find that a group of men about town "returned the first of the week from their hunt. One of them killed a bear all right, all right, but it transpired that brain was handicapped, having had the misfortune to step into a large bear trap some time before the hunter appeared on the scene."

And even back in 1901 we find the Editor commenting that "having failed to lift the American Cup Sir Thomas Lipton will now devote himself to lifting loving cups."

"The youth and beauty of Pallade were out Tuesday night with their tin horns and tom-toms doing the rag-time at the dance." Well, well—and they're still doing it, too!

Flood Control District Sends Out Warning

While the Flood Control district is proceeding as rapidly as finances permit toward full control and conservation of mountain watersheds and channel protection works, there yet remains a large amount of work to be done.

In order to properly take protective measures, should these have been inaugurated for the coming season, under which channels will be continuously inspected and reported to our main office during periods of rains and stream flow.

In case of emergency or threatened local damage, property owners and residents are requested to call one of the following numbers: Mutual 9211 Sta. 2174 or Mutual 9211 Sta. 2179.

During rains or flood periods operators will be stationed to receive such calls at any time, day or night, according to E. C. Eaton, chief engineer.
